Add meaning to your journeys

You are promised an unbound pleasure, a tour package floated by a young group that takes you on the road less travelled, giving you an opportunity to explore nature while learning to preserve it.

There are the trips that you take to forget the monotonous aspect of your daily life and then there is the one to discover a place. JW M aims to engage people in nature and teach them the only means of advertising. “People come to us mainly through these forums, while through social media, the group also reaches out to those who are interested in travel. For those jaded with the cut-and-dried tourist attractions, it is a change that goes on, deep and permanent, in the idea of living.” — Niteen Bodhan

“Travel is more than the sum of sights; it is a change that penetrates, deep and permanent, in the idea of living.” — Blaise Pascal

The team plans to include developmental projects that may continue for even a year. The idea is to take various groups to a particular place to fulfil a specific mission.

The project has now expanded to about six journeys a year.

In the days to come, itineraries in the Northeast will also include Nagaland and Sikkim.

The group was formed in 2007 and has been running ever since.

The group, which was formed in 2007 and has been running ever since, has been able to attract more and more people to their cause.

Talking about the advantages of such trips, Sreedhar adds, “These influential discussions stay with the travellers even after they return to their routine life, encouraging many to plan another trip, another dialogue with Mother Nature.
